The Story of Doctor Dolittle

Once upon a time, there was a doctor; and his name was Dolittle John Dolittle. All the folks knew him well. And when he walked down the street everyone would say, "There goes the Doctor!" And the dogs and the children would all run up and follow him. The house he lived in was quite small; but his garden was very large. His sister, Sarah Dolittle, was housekeeper for him. He was very fond of animals; he had rabbits, white mice, a squirrel and many others. But his favourite pets were Dab-Dab the duck, Jig the pig and the owl Too-Too. His sister came to him and said, "John, how can you expect sick people to come and see you when you keep all these animals in the house? We are getting poorer every day." So as time went on, the Doctor got more and more animals; and the people who came to see him got less and less. He had no one left except the Cat's-meat-Man, and he only got sick once a year, when he used to give the Doctor sixpence for the medicine. He kept on getting still more pets; then he sold his piano and sold the brown suit he wore on Sundays. And now, when he walked down the street people would say, "There goes John Dolittle! There was a time when he was the best doctor but look at him now he hasn't any money and his stockings are full of holes!"

1. Who was Dolittle John Dolittle?

2. Which were his favourite pets?

3. What did Sarah Dolittle say to him one day?

4. How many things did Doctor sell out?

5. What would people say to him when he walked down the street?
